Message from Fr. Quinn

Praise the Lord! We've heard the saying, "I'm all in!" Or, "It's either all or nothing." Another saying, "All be darned." And finally, "All for one and one for all." O yah, let's not forget, "All you can eat." There is something to the word ALL. Today we hear the word "all" multiple times, "You shall love the Lord your God with ALL your heart, with ALL your soul, with ALL your mind, and with ALL your strength." Hidden in the meaning of all there is an ultimatum. To give it your all in a sporting competition means to leave it all out on the field and to not withhold anything whatsoever. Perhaps the principle of the Gospel message can not be separated from the complete and unconditional nature of Jesus' invitation to sacrifice everything, ie it all for the greater glory of God. No saint in human history could be categorized as one who just gave a little bit or a tiny portion. If we look back at the history of the Church we say, "The blood of the martyrs are the seeds of faith." The ultimate and total gift of self is The way of Jesus Christ. The people we remember in our lives are the ones who had an uncompromising ability to donate their life in its entirety. Selflessness and a cheerful giver are the trademarks of one who has decided to live the Gospel in a radical way. So how can we reconcile within us our own self-awareness that we are not like the saints? How are we to possibly cope with the self awareness of our own sinful selfishness? How are we to come to "understand with all our strength to love our neighbor as ourselves?" If we are honest, we soon realize that we are helplessly unable to truly give it our all. There is a concupiscence within us, an original sin that seeks to only give in small measures. This past week I saw a clear glimpse of the potential of others to give more. Our finance council meeting was an animated and lively discussion that expressed the desire of the heart to give more. There was a sincere desire in the hearts of those in attendance who really cared for the handing on of faith in a community. As I went over numbers of the parish history in both sacramental ministry and contributing units, I was initially disheartened. Data that showed contributing units of 217 in 2010 to 65 in 2021, or 20 confirmations in 2010 to 2 confirmations in 2021. However, just like in our own personal lives, history does not have to be a determinate agent of how we can cooperate with God in the future. It isn't that we haven't given it our all in the past that plots the trajectory of a potentially dim future. It is the potential of the human heart to, in fact, to give it's all! Capacity to give it our all is only one solitary infinite all encompassing action away. What do I mean by that? God can blow up a little with a lot and make it ALL! God can work with a little desire and pour in His All to a heart. In effect, realizing the potential of our all and everything allows us to learn that we can, indeed, not be far from the Kingdom of God.

Now and Forever, Fr. Quinn

5 THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW

About Advent

BY PATRICIA KASTEN | THE COMPASS

- 1 Advent starts on Nov. 28. Many people make or buy Advent calendars to count the days until Christmas.
- 2 The word "Advent" comes from a Latin verb, advenire, meaning "to come."
- 3 The first Advent calendars marked time until Christmas would come, using items like chalk marks or burning candles at home. This began in the 1700s, as a Protestant tradition in Europe.
- 4 Handmade paper Advent calendars date to the 1850s. The first commercial calendars came to Germany in the early 20th century.
- 5 Commercial Advent calendars were very popular until World War II, when paper and cardboard were rationed throughout Europe.

Listening to the Holy Spirit

Dear friends and followers of Jesus:

A couple years ago, I had a chance to meet with Pope Francis. During our time together, I shared with him the progress we are making in our effort to build a culture of missionary discipleship.

BISHOP'S CORNER

Bishop David Ricken

He encouraged me (and us) to "lean into the Holy Spirit," listening for where the Spirit is guiding us.

In my column reflecting on our visit, I wrote of the pope: "He also said that we need to remember that it is not so much that we bring the Holy Spirit to others; the Holy Spirit is already there. We simply help the people realize how close God is to them already and help them respond to God's love." I remember how powerful his words felt at the time.

Well, it seems that the pope's message was not just for me; this is something he desires for the entire Catholic Church. This weekend, the church around the world will begin a two-year process of prayer, dialogue and listening to help us hear how the Spirit is moving us in this third millennium of the church. This process is known as a "synod" and the theme of this synod is "For a Synodal Church: Communion, Participation and Mission."

Now, you may be wondering, "What is a synod and what does it mean to be a synodal church?" A "synod" is another name for a "church council," and synods have been around since the church's foundation. They can take place at a local level, such as a parish or a diocese, or they can take place in the universal church.

Since Vatican II in the 1960s, the Vatican has regularly held synods of bishops, to bring together bishops from around the world to discuss important topics and help inform the pope's thinking on key issues. Recent synods at the Vatican have addressed the new evangelization, families and young people.

The word "synodal" is the adjective form of synod. It describes a church that, by its very nature, emphasizes the importance of listening to the people of God. Some may hear this and wonder if the church is becoming a democracy. The answer is no.

Listening to the people of God is not about everyone having a vote and Catholic teaching being decided by majority rule. Rather, it is an invitation for all people to listen attentively for the guidance of the Holy Spirit, and then gathering to discern how the Spirit is leading the church. Ultimately, the Holy Spirit is in charge. Our job is to be attentive and remain open to the surprises of the Spirit!
